State Rejects Venice Plea to Burn Old Houses

The Illinois Air Pollution Control Board has turned down a request by the city of Venice to burn the remains of a number of substandard dwellings. But it has agreed to hold a public hearing on the matter, members of the Venice City Council were informed Friday night.

Mayor John E. Lee told council members that a date for the hearing will be set.

He said the city should move as rapidly as possible to secure permission from owners for razing condemned housing which the city hopes to replace with new, modernized dwellings as part of a citywide housing development program now being finalized by a St. Louis planning firm and the Southwest Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning Commission.

The mayor suggested that as many as possible of the old dwellings be ready for razing at the time the public hearing is held.

The appropriation and budget for the city's first supervisor of buildings, who will be paid $1,000 a month, was set at $25,000.

National Teacher Exam Scheduled July 18 at SIU

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale has been designated as a test site for administering National Teacher examinations July 18.

Harley Bradshaw, SIU coordinator of educational and institutional Testing, said college seniors preparing to teach and teachers applying for positions in school systems which encourage or require applicants to take the exam along with their other credentials are eligible to take the tests. The exams are prepared and administered by Educational Testing Services.

Bradshaw said designation of SIU as a center will give prospective teachers in this area an opportunity to compare their performance with candidates throughout the country who take the tests. Last year more than 107,000 participated.

At the ordinary session, candidates may take the committee examinations, which include tests in profession and general education, and one of 17 teaching areas. Examinations designed to evaluate the person's understanding of the person's and methods applicable to his teaching field.

Information on registration forms may be obtained from Counseling and Testing Center, Washington Square, at SIU. Prospective teachers planning to take the tests should obtain Bullets of Information at once.

Bradshaw advised.

Con Con Studying Changes in State Taxing Structure

A public hearing on the location of the proposed site for the Illinois Route 157 in Madison county will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday July 21, in Collinsville, it was announced by State Highway Department officials at the State Capitol.

Proposed changes in the tax structure of the state will be before the Constitutional Convention in Springfield, outlined in a report received Friday from Ray Johnsen, delegate from Troy.

After years of living with a revenue article in a Constitution which has earned Illinois the distinction of having the most progressive and fair tax structures, the Constitutional Convention last week made a step forward.

Public Works Director William F. Cellino said the location to be considered would range from Interstate 70 to 2000 feet west of Highway 33 (the Granite City Collingsville road), about one mile north of Collinsville.

A public hearing concerning the project was held in July last year, but major changes have been made in the design features since that time. Maps showing the proposed highway location will be on display prior to, during and following the hearing for inspection by the public.

Engineers of the District 8 highway office at French Village will be on hand before and after the hearing to discuss individual problems concerning the project. The highway department's relocation assistance program, available to anyone displaced as a direct result of construction of this project, also will be discussed at the hearing.

The proposed real property must be levied uniformly by valuation. However, subject to such limitations as the General Assembly may prescribe, counties may classify property.

The classification must be reasonable and assessments must be uniform within each class. Real property used in agriculture should be assessed at a higher level than the level of assessment as single family residential real property.

In any county, the level of assessment of the highest class shall not be more than two and one-half times the level of assessment or rate of tax of the lowest class.

3. Ad valorem (by valuation) personal property taxes must be abolished on Jan. 1, 1973. The General Assembly also will remove from the law local government units as a result of the abolition by levying or authorizing the levy of taxes other than on an ad valorem basis.

'Cannonball' and All That Jazz Due Here Friday Night

When Julian "Cannonball" Adderley plays the alto saxophone he tells a story that's simple and artistically tempered with the realistic overtones of life.

Cannonball's quintet, featuring his brother Nat, consist of the Mississippi River Festival attraction at Southern Illinois University's Southwest campus here Friday.

Education has forced Adderley's father to give up a musical career as a cornetist in order to support his family, but he bought his sons instruments and has the desire of becoming a musician would be fulfilled by Cannonball and his younger brother, Nat.

Todays the Julian "Cannonball" Adderley Quintet is listed among the top rated jazz performers in the country.

Cannonball got his name from his propulsive style but his brother applied it when he saw him waltzing down a street and nicknamed him "Cannonball," which in slurring repetition gradually came out "Cannonball."

The alto saxophonist played trumpet in high school, switched to sax in college, and spent seven years in band and orchestra at a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., high school before forming his own group.

First Barry Harris influenced Adderley to switch from reed to an accent on ballads. After that, it was only a question of time before Cannonball's following reached the fringe of "sophomoreitis."

"If this is the road Cannonball is going to travel,"

Down Beat review of one of his albums of this period said, "he will surely succeed in making simple and artistically temperered with the realistic overtones of life."

Adderley's aplomb has been compared to Duke Ellington's. Nat Hentoff, jazz critic, said that he so obviously wants his listeners to like him and take where he and his men are doing that he creates an unusually friendly and good humored atmosphere in his personal appearance."

As a Capitol Records star, Cannonball's first long-play album was a jazz interpretation of the Broadway musical "Fiddler On The Roof," released in late 1964. Before he joined Capitol, the jazzman recorded one other LP for the "young Wilson/Cannonball Adderley."

Other albums released on Capitol include "Dominion," "Live Session," "Cannonball Adderley Live!" "Mercy, Mercy, Mercy" and '74 "Miles Away."

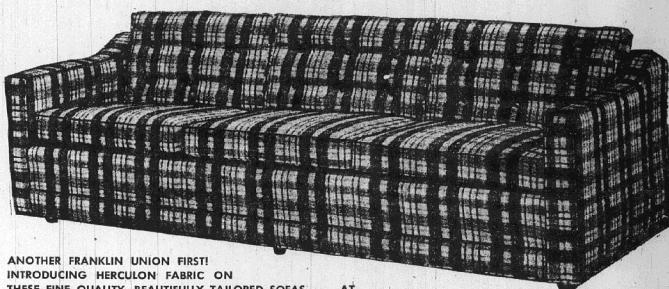

Members of Adderley's quintet include his brother, Nat, and Jim Zawinul, piano; Victor Gaskin, bass; and Roy McCurdy, drums. Besides the alto sax, Cannonball plays tenor trumpet, clarinet and flute.

Adderley and the quintet will begin their program at the Mississippi River Festival at 8 p.m. on July 12.

Reclining seats range in price from $2.50 to $5.50 under the tent. Lawn seating for adults is $2.50; children under 12 are $1. MIFP concert books, offering a 20% discount, will be on sale until July 12.

Master Plan Under Way For Conservation Education

A master plan for joint programs in public conservation education at Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge and the Little Grassy Lake area has been approved by the federal Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife and Southern Illinois University, Carbondale.

The plan fleshes out a two-year old memorandum of agreement between SU and the federal agency by which university and refuge lands around Little Grassy Lake are knitted into a cooperative conservation area.

As originally set up, the program would focus on SU's 6000 acre Outdoor Laboratory at Little Grassy and another 1500 acres of refuge land.

The project, as outlined in 1968, was to be teaching, through conservation education, of students of elementary and secondary schools and their present and future teachers in the wise use and understanding of natural, cultural and historical resources in their natural settings, including soil, geological formations, water, forests, and wildlife and their ecological relationships.

"The new plan does not limit the program to any boundaries between the satellite areas and the Refuge. It envisions 'satellite teaching areas' throughout the 44,000-acre Refuge for field-trips of students, forest and forest plantations, fossil areas, native prairies, bird-handling, unique wildlife habitats and other subjects under the general headings of 'ecological' and 'cultural' areas."

The satellite areas are included as one of five master plan developments in the overall scheme covering both sides of Little Grassy and the Refuge.

One of the five—a resident in a instructional center called Camp Other—will be located in part of SU's two main conservation and recreation camps on the west shores of the lake. Camp Oikos (a Greek word symbol for "ecology"), includes student cabin for use by teacher-training teacher-in-service programs, conservation workshops, high school groups and scholars.

Other areas will be developed solely to small-group studies of conservation and environmental problems.

Future Centers

Outlined for the future are an Interpretive Center, an Environmental Information Center for visitors, and a Cultural Center.

The Interpretive Center, to be situated near the original Conservation Land Area on the east of Little Grassy, will house the program office, a library, classrooms, a library, laboratory and displays. It also will serve as a visitor's center for travellers and will be prepared George Rogers Clark scenic drive across southern Illinois.

The Environmental Information Center would be set up near the Crab Orchard National Refuge and would help groups and organizations with tours or day-use activities at the Refuge.

Indian, pioneer, settler and urban life would be highlighted at the Cultural Center. Its mission would be to show the impact of succeeding cultures on the environment, and

Johnson Road Crash

'Staph' Thrives on Picnic Foods

Take proper measures to protect food, family and guests from food poisoning during this picnic season.

Food poisoning outbreaks can frequently be traced to an organism called staphylococcus. It is found everywhere. "Staph" thrives on the skin and in the respiratory tract of healthy persons. And food handlers who have colds, sore throats or infected cuts are almost certain to carry the bacteria.

Once the bacteria invade food, they can multiply undetected and produce a heatable toxin. This poisonous substance is odorless, tasteless and tasteless. And it is not destroyed by boiling the food.

Staphylococcus food poisoning is generally associated with kitchen accidents. A few simple precautions will help prevent these.

Keep children out of the line of traffic while you work at the kitchen counter.

Make a habit of turning handles of all pots and pans toward the back of the range or table. Never let handles extend over the edge.

Use sharp knives for cutting and refrigerating foods. The food will cool more quickly and there will be less opportunity for bacteria to grow.

Don't plant raw food seeds in the soil. If you do, bury them well and cover them with a thick layer of soil.

Use shallow pans for cooking and refrigerating foods.

Keep matches out of the reach of small children. Use only safety matches.

Neglected Vitamins

In Children's Diets

When you plan meals for children, give special attention to foods that provide Vitamins A and C. Studies show these vitamins to be the most neglected nutrients in children's diets simply because children don't like vegetables.

A child's Vitamin needs are so easy to clean that a hurried homemaker often gives them a once-over-lightly washing that may not remove all the dirt.

6 Hurt, Arrest 4
During Fighting
In Venice Friday

Fights in North Venice attracted large crowds Friday night, which led to four arrests and six injuries. Extra police were dispatched to the area to restore order.

At 9:50 p.m., officers found 60 persons near Meredocia and Logan streets, where a red 1967 Ford Mustang was parked in the middle of the traffic lanes. Profanity was heard and two women and a man were fighting.

The crowd was dispersed, but at 10:15 p.m. Friday night, 30 people were seen near a parked 1961 auto. About 10 of the group were fighting, some trying to pull the occupants from their cars.

As police sought to halt the fight, another broke out behind the crowd, and several bottles landed and broke on the ground.

With three Venice policemen concluding that the growing crowd was in a position to conduct an arrest, Officers responded along with Granite City and Madison police, state troopers and Madison county sheriff deputies.

The first to be arrested was lodged in jail. As more arrests were made, the crowd of 150 began to break up. However, fighting broke out and injuries began to occur at another location, Meredocia and Market streets.

Madison Officer Ronald Grzywacz and the police dog, "Ski Kelly," began to disperse the crowd although the dog was bitten by several youths.

The increasing staff of officers at the scene regrouped and succeeded in persuading spectators to leave the area.

Venice Police Chief John Eastington estimated that county authorities provided four or five cars of deputies, and said six cars of police, and six cars in the vicinity. Off-duty Madison officers were among those who assisted.
